Family News

Waltja is an incorporated Aboriginal Association based in Alice Springs. Our aim is to provide support services to families on remote communities throughout the region. Our objectives include the addressing of social, emotional and well-being issues, including substance misuse/abuse, child protection, violence, health and safety. We seek to assist remote Indigenous communities in developing a capacity for self-management and self-determination.

Our 36 -page colour magazine, the “Family News”, is produced approximately five times per year and distributed free of charge to all remote Indigenous communities throughout the Central Australian region. The “Family News” not only gives communities an outlet for their news and a voice for their concerns, it provides a means of effectively disseminating vital information on the issues affecting community life. The “Family News” keeps families from remote communities in touch with each other. It informs people of relevant services and support available, as well as being a very entertaining read. Waltja is not funded to produce this magazine.

To recover some of the costs we ask interested individuals and groups to subscribe to the “Family News”. This will help us to continue to produce a quality product, and keep our subscribers in touch with the grass root concerns of communities & families.
